This brought to his feet Mr. Doolittle with the question: "And do you consider the laboring men of this country the slaves of the South?"

Mr. Wilson replied: "I think such a question would be asked by any one above the intelligence of a slave."

(Loud and prolonged applause on the Democratic side.) Much confusion followed Chairman Wilson's answer. Mr. Doolittle said he did not catch the answer, and asked that it be repeated with the evident purpose of making a protest against it.

Mr. Wilson, I desire to be courteous to everyone in this debate, so I will withdraw the answer I gave the gentleman.

Mr. Reed. But you cannot withdraw the Democratic applause. (Laughter.)

Wilson's oration was forcible and eloquent. He began with a reference to the legend which he said had always been inscribed on the Democratic banner: "Equal Rights to All and Special Privileges to None."

The people had brought the Democratic party into power on the broad principles of equal justice to all. The Democratic party raises itself as one man, takes up this great cause, plants its standard here to sink or swim, survive or perish, that the Democratic party may continue in power. (Democratic applause.)

"We will plant the banner here," he said; "we mean to have a fight, and will call every true believer in the Democracy to rally to our side. Let us all upon the American people, scattered and unable to organize, who plod their way under the burden of taxation, while our petition boxes are filled with the protests of trusts and combinations of this country. Let us be true to our faith; let us go forward until we make this a country where every man shall see before him an opportunity opening before him. Then every man shall be before him, an opportunity to rise to such influence, to such prosperity as his own merits justify, not weighted down with the burdens of taxation. Let us labor for a country free to all, equal to all, with an opportunity planted in every home and in every humble fireside in the land."

As he finished, the Democratic side broke into cheers, and a wave of applause swept over the galleries. The applause continued fully two minutes.

After it subsided, Mr. Doolittle arose to a question of privilege, and referred to the fact that Wilson had characterized the question with which he (Doolittle) had interrupted his speech as unworthy of a man with the intelligence of a slave, which remark Mr. Wilson had withdrawn.

Mr. Doolittle said that while he accepted that withdrawal, he desired to say he nevertheless attributed this remark to the associations of the gentleman from West Virginia before the war.

This shot at the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee called forth applause on the Republican side and ironical jeers from the Democrats.

Mr. Wilson retorted that he thought an apology was due to himself rather than to the gentleman from Washington. This closed the incident, and Mr. Burrows of Michigan rose to reply to the tariff act of 1890.

Mr. Burrows said that the measure under consideration had for its avowed object a radical modification of the tariff act of 1890. It involved not only a change in the rate, but a complete removal of the economic policy.

The tariff act of 1890 was enacted with a view not only of securing revenue for the government, but to encourage the creation of new enterprises and protect American industries and American workmen against unequal and injurious foreign competition. It accomplished both these results. Since July 1, 1892, however, a marked decline in revenues had taken place. This was not attributable to the law of 1890, but the prostration of the business of the country through the ascendancy of a political party pledged to the destruction of the protection policy.

This not only crippled the operation of domestic manufactures, but the importer naturally curtailed importation with a view to the coming lower tariff. If the Republicans had been successful in the election of 1892 public prosperity would have continued. President Harrison told the truth in his last annual message when he said so high a degree of prosperity and so great a supply of the necessities of life had never before been enjoyed by our people.

Mr. Burrows then proceeded to contrast then and now. He declared the tariff bill of 1890 had contradicted every prediction of the Democrats by creating hundreds of new industries, enlarging employment and giving increased wages to labor, cheapening the cost of foreign imports and increasing our exports. He reassured that the present general paralysis of business was solely from the ascendancy of the party pledged to repeal that act. He declared: "You have but to abandon the policy upon which you have entered, recommit this bill and permit the existing tariff regulations to remain undisturbed and all our industries will quickly revive."

Mr. Burrows then took up the tariff plank of the last Democratic platform. He compared it with the South Carolina ordinance of nullification. He then turned and argued at length on the constitutionality of the protective tariff, citing Webster, Adams, Jefferson and others in support thereof. He declared if the present policy was carried out it would lead to individual disaster and national bankruptcy.

The speaker then took up the first. He proceeded to argue that the farmer had been especially selected for the assault and destruction of free-iron and free wool. It would result in the destruction of flocks and the closing of mines or loss of our condition to the level of foreign competitors, and when the flocks were slaughtered and the mines closed the foreigner would take advantage of our helpless condition and impose upon the United States whatever burden his cupidity might suggest. Turning to the dutiable schedules he declared there was not one but in which some industry would be injured and many destroyed, while not a single one would stimulate and domestic industry or give employment to labor.

Mr. Burrows then argued against the substitution of ad valorem duties, and concluded with a graphic picture of the present depressed condition of the country and appealed to the Democrats to abandon the policy outlined in the bill.

At the conclusion of the tariff speech there was a great outburst of Republican applause, so long-continued as to cover for a rebuke from the chair. For order was restored Gen. Black of Illinois took the floor. He referred to Mr. Burrows's picture of dire disaster in the country and said the suffering depicted by him later existed after thirty years of law's written by Burrows's party. In referring to the other state of affairs, antecedent to the inauguration of a protective policy, he declared that no public and little private indebtedness existed then.

This brought to his feet Mr. Doolittle with the question: "And do you consider the laboring men of this country the slaves of the South?"

Mr. Wilson replied: "I think such a question would be asked by any one above the intelligence of a slave."

(Loud and prolonged applause on the Democratic side.) Much confusion followed Chairman Wilson's answer. Mr. Doolittle said he did not catch the answer, and asked that it be repeated with the evident purpose of making a protest against it.

Lucien Young an Important Witness Before the Inquisition—What Willis Said to Atty.—Gen. Smith—The Thunder-Babes.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) The definite news from Hawaii by the Warrimoo, published this morning, brought flood of inquiries into the State's Department. James H. Blount, ex-Commissioner to Hawaii, who called at the department, declined to discuss the news from Honolulu or talk on the Hawaiian question at all.

Later Blount went to the House of Representatives and mingled with the members before appearing before the Senate Committee of Inquiry. He chatted on the Hawaiian affairs with Representatives Waite, Tarsney and others, but confined his views to interesting descriptive features of his trip to Hawaii, and had nothing to say on the merits of the case or the situation at the present time.

In response to the question, Blount told of his visit to the ex-Queen. The first visit lasted only five minutes, and the Queen had little to say, apparently desiring him to do all the talking, and evidently not having a clear idea of the situation of affairs at that time. Blount said that among the people there was a good opinion of the Queen, and that the sensational stories concerning her found little credence.

To one of the Congressmen who asked Blount if he attached much significance to the rumor that British forces had been landed at Honolulu for the ostensible purpose of protecting British interests, he said it was probably for the sole purpose of protection. Some members referred to the Blount report, whereupon its author said he had been compelled to make it much longer than he wished. There was a very general desire among the people of Honolulu to say something on the subject, and they made constant applications to be heard, so that much care was necessary in avoiding prolix statements and cumulative evidence.

Mr. Blount was asked for a statement on the present situation, but said: "I have nothing to add to my report, and in fact, I have no information whatever on the condition of affairs since I left the islands, and my report was closed."

Frank P. Hastings, Hawaiian Charge d'Affairs, also called at the State Department this morning, but did not see the Secretary. The legation had received no word from the Warrimoo this morning, but it confidently expected a telegram. Relations between the legation and the State Department remained undisturbed in any particular.

At the White House this morning there was evidence of special activity in the rooms of the secretaries and clerks. It is expected that another special message will go to Congress in a very short time.

GUNS TRAINED ON THE CITY.

American, British and Japanese Forces Combined for an Attack.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) The World has the following special correspondence, dated Honolulu, January 1, via Victoria:

After the arrival of the Corwin had thrown people into a nervous convulsion, every one expected momentarily that an attempt would be made to restore the Queen, by force of arms. It was thought by the Royalists and the provisional government people calling that the revenue cutter had brought instructions from Cleveland to that effect.

"For five days Willis made no sign, though it is a fact that they were ready on the morning of December 19 to do all. Officers had been called on board the ship, and the armament was ready and the great guns were trained on the palace. Willis will say nothing about this, but the officers on board the Philadelphia and Adams and the British gunboat Champion are the World's correspondent's authority for it."

"Admiral Irwin was asked about this subsequently, when Cleveland's special message on the Hawaiian question came, and said: "Ah! we had men ready not to attack the provisional government, but to protect the citizens in case of riot."

Capt. Cook of the Champion, on the night before, is said to have told some ladies at a party that the American, British and Japanese marines were to be landed next day, and were to restore the Queen.

"The same night the World correspondent met Mr. Hatch, the vice-president of the provisional government, in Emma Square, where the band was playing. Hatch said it was the understanding of himself and associates that the marines were to be landed in the morning, and the provisional government was ready."

"But Willis evidently changed his mind. On the morning of December 29 he sent Consul-General Mills to the palace and informed the government that he would like to call upon them at their house with a communication of importance. President Dole and the cabinet said they would be glad to receive Willis, and the time was set at 1:30 in the afternoon.

"Willis arrived at the appointed time. He came alone, and was received with due gravity by Mr. Dole and the cabinet. He transpired and was received by the cabinet.

A SURPRISE.

The House Committee Will Report the House Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) A surprise was furnished in the Hawaiian matter by the action of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, this morning, which voted unanimously to favorably report the Boutelle resolution to the House. This resolution is an iron-clad one, calling upon the Secretary of the Navy to inform the House by what authority instructions were issued placing the naval forces under the order of Minister Blount, and to furnish copies of all orders or suggestions issued by himself or any officer of the navy since March 9, 1889, concerning the naval forces of the Hawaiian Islands. An amendment was made, changing the date to March 4, 1892, so that the operations of the navy in Hawaii, under the Hawaiian administration, would be included.

The Secretary of the Navy is instructed to furnish all information, and is given power to withhold documents which he might consider confidential or the publicity of which at this time might be regarded as contrary to public policy.

Chairman Cummings of the Naval

Committee will report the Boutelle resolution to the House immediately, but says it cannot be considered until the debate on the Wilson bill is finished.

The Cabinet meeting today was longer than usual, and was undoubtedly largely devoted to the Hawaiian question.

A MORTGAGE ON THE FUTURE.

Minister Willis Says the Democratic Party is for Twenty Years.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—(By the Associated Press.) The following additional news was brought by the steamer Warrimoo, which arrived at Victoria last night from Honolulu:

On the evening of December 16 Atty. Gen. Smith visited Minister Willis. During the interview Willis said: "What, are you to resist the wishes of the United States? Either of these Japanese or British ships could crush you. If they assume a hostile attitude you would be compelled to apply for our protection."

Mr. Smith intimated that his government could wait for a Republican administration to grant him what he wanted. Willis declared that the Democratic party was assured of twenty years of power, and that the will of President Cleveland would prevail.

OUR INSULAR ADVISERS.

The Provisional Government, the President, the Queen and British Interests.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(By Cable and Associated Press.) The Times, commenting on the Hawaiian advice via Victoria, says: "That the provisional government is well-advised in assuming an attitude of defiance toward the President of the United States may indeed be doubted. Although it has been rumored that he will accept a compromise, Cleveland has shown that he has a stiff back and thinks his countrymen admire it, and it is quite possible that, in the long run, he may show himself as determined in the Hawaiian policy as he was upon the silver question."

"Indeed, it is difficult to lend credit to the statement that the United States means to recognize the provisional government, yet it must be owned that the conduct of the ex-Queen has been so improvident as to afford the American Executive an opportunity to withdraw from the offer he had made her. American politicians may argue that, in face of her dilatoriness, the President's offer no longer holds good. Technically, this is true, but will such pettifogging command itself to the judgment of American people? The offer, of which the offer was made cannot have vanished altogether, even in the stress of American politics, in less than a month."

IN COMMITTEE.

Lieutenants Young and Moore of the Boston Give Testimony.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) The sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, which is charged with the Hawaiian investigation, met this morning, and proceeded promptly to business. Lieut. Lucien Young was the principal witness examined, and, like all the others before him, was pledged to secrecy. Lieut. Moore, the executive officer and hydrographer of the cruiser Boston, followed Lieut. Young. Both lieutenants are understood to have sustained Capt. Wilts in all essential particulars concerning the Hawaiian affairs in which the Boston and its officers and the men took part.

During the session of the committee Mr. Blount sent in his card and was promptly admitted, but remained only a short time. Mr. Blount said that 10 o'clock Friday was the hour set for him to appear.

JUST AFTER THE WAR.

Soldiers Returning to Old Virginia—Building Up the War-worn Towns.

Thomas Nelson Page in Harper's Magazine: At first the news of Lee's surrender came borne, so to speak, by the winds, so vague was the whisper, then taking palpable shape, as the news of the surrenders of the other armies, and along the country roads, stopping in at the naked farms to get a meal, if there were enough left to feed a hungry man. Then little parties passed by with details of the surrender that no longer left any doubt in their minds. And after we were done—it might be fewer or more—days in which it was not known whether loved ones might not have been captured or killed in the last engagement, they came home footsore and weary, dragging themselves along the cannon-worn roads, having marched down so bravely four years before, and, clinging themselves into the arms of weeping mothers or wives or sisters gathered to receive them, surrendered for the first time to death.

The soldiers returning from the army found Virginia almost as war-worn as they were themselves. In many sections the country was swept clean, and the disorganization of labor and the depletion of teams had prevented the proper propagation of the horses. The horses which the soldiers had brought from Appomattox were not infrequently the chief dependence for a new crop, and before the huzzas over the returning armies of a Union had died away in the North, the soldiers had at hand, to help them, horses which had been working in the fields, trying to build up again the waste places of their States. There is scarcely a professional man over the age of 40 today who did not work at the plow during those first years after the war.

The complete prostration of Virginia—indeed the whole South—at the close of the war has never been fully apprehended by the outside world. It is not only that property values had been lost, but that the value of the land which had been left, and the value of the crops which property values can be estimated had been extirpated. The entire personal property of the State had been destroyed; the laboring class of a country dependent upon its agriculture had been scattered, driven from their homes into wretchedness with no property to make them conservative and no authority to hold them in check. Their dependence was suddenly shifted from their former masters to strangers, whose interest, if not direct, was necessarily to the detriment of the country. The country was left overwhelmed with debt, with nothing remaining from which the debt could be paid. It is difficult to conceive of this, even as applied to a small section, but when it involved a territory covering a dozen States, with a population of over many millions, the mind refuses to take it in. Yet such was the case at the South.

REDLANDS.

The Damage to the Crop Now Known to Be Insignificant.

REDLANDS, Jan. 9.—(Special.) The orange freeze situation in this city remains unchanged, save that the damage done is estimated to be less than at first reported. It is thought that not to exceed 2 per cent. of the oranges in the Redlands district were touched by frost, and this small amount is confined to a small area of orchards over the low ground.

AZUSA.

The Hardy Fruit of This Valley Escapes Its Skin.

AZUSA, Jan. 9.—(Special.) The weather here today has been clear and warm with signs of severe sandstorms in the distance. Last night was much warmer than the three preceding nights and no frost was discernible this morning. It is believed the cold spell is now at an end. There has been no wind here today.

A careful estimate of the damage to the orange crop in the Azusa Valley indicates at least not more than 2 per cent. of the entire crop. The oranges of this valley possess thicker skins than those of other districts and this fact has proven their salvation during the late freeze.

Physicians Hope for His Recovery—Miller Out on Bail.

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) Chief of Police Archibald, who was shot on Saturday night, is still alive, and the physicians now have hopes of his recovery, although they are still unable to locate one bullet. Constable Miller, who did the shooting, was released this afternoon on $2000 bail. His preliminary examination is set for Monday, January 15.

THE CITRUS EXHIBITS.

Three Carloads of Southern California Productions Unloaded at the Fair Grounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) Information from Chicago regarding the great fire in the exposition grounds has been received here by the Executive Committee of the Midwinter Fair to the effect that no goods intended for the fair were injured by the fire and that very few were even damaged by water. The Russian exhibits, concerning which there was some anxiety, escaped untouched, and none of the dampness incurred will interfere with speedy shipment of exhibits which have not as yet been damaged.

The date for opening the Northern California Citrus Fair is January 15, and the Citrus Fair of Southern California opens on February 20. In the Southern California building a tower

A HEAVY FAILURE.

W. F. Beck & Co. Have Gone Up for $35,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) W. F. Beck & Co., commission merchants and dealers in canned salmon and canned fruits, failed today for $313,513. The principal creditors are Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Bank for $104,900; London and San Francisco Bank for $54,000; and the Bank of British Columbia for $24,500.

George G. Walte, a clerk formerly employed by the firm, is charged with having embezzled $95,000, which he squandered in dissipation.

EIGHTY MEN IN DANGER.

Hoisting Works of the Idaho-Maryland Mine Burned.

GRASS VALLEY, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) Tonight the hoisting works of the Idaho-Maryland mine were totally destroyed by fire. Eighty men were in the mine, 2000 feet underground, and the townsmen became panic-stricken when it looked for a time as if their escape would be cut off. Finally three or four brave men went down the air-shaft and told the miners below that the hoisting-works were on fire. The miners quickly climbed up, left the mine, and all escaped in safety.

The fire originated in the dryhouse next to the hoisting-works. The loss is $60,000. It is reported that two men who ventured down the pump-shaft to warn the miners have not been heard from.

A MURDER TRIAL.

The Case of James Madden, One of Three Defendants. Begun Yesterday.

MARTINEZ, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) The trial of James Madden, who is charged with the murder of John J. Maloney, commenced here this morning in the Superior Court. The trial was adjourned two weeks west of Cornwall, near the railroad track on the morning of October 16, with the upper part of his skull cut off, to all appearances having been made in the day and upon the day following, but little traces of freezing was found. But in this lies a great danger. The lighting received by many of the oranges leaves so little trace in the structure of the orange when thawed out that it is often in a condition such as to make it almost impossible to detect that the orange has been frozen. The damage gradually changes the texture of the orange and is easily seen in from ten to thirty days. The danger to the orange industry lies in shipping oranges which have been more or less frozen, and in the exchange brands of fruit.

The fruit exchange meeting today decided to reduce the freight rates for the more damaged oranges if false.

It has not been asked for, nor will it accept, a temporary reduction of rates. No damaged fruit will be shipped East, a written guarantee going with each carload. Prices will not be reduced because of the freeze.

SOUTH RIVERSIDE.

SOUTH RIVERSIDE, Jan. 9.—(Special.) The last cold snap filled everybody with alarm, it being over, people have found that they are not scared than hurt. Even those places sending out the most unfavorable reports now find that real damage was done than was thought at first.

A careful survey of the orchards of the region has failed to find, with the exception of one which in winter it is claimed that some lemons were frost-bitten. So far as has been learned no oranges were damaged. There was some very light damage to the undergrowth upon lemon trees.

Our early citrus animals to only four thousand carloads this season, but there are several thousands of acres of young trees, and our people feel greatly relieved to find that what was quite a severe frost in some localities did not occur.

The lowest reading of the thermometer here at this place was 29 degrees, but that really cuts no figure, because general observations were not taken, and it is not known if the thermometer from which the figures are given registered correctly.

AT COLTON.

COLTON, Jan. 9.—Growers are indignant over reports that have been sent out from here that oranges on the low ground were frost-bitten. The Associated Press reports that oranges not frozen on the lowlands or terrace.

The damage to the new growth is very light.

EXCITING TIMES.

The Republicans Proceed to Organize the New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON (N.J.) Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) Affairs here in the legislative contest reached a critical stage today, and the Governor, as a precautionary measure, has ordered a detachment of police to the Statehouse to preserve order. The Republicans assumed control this afternoon.

TUSTIN.

At the meeting of the Orange County Alliance sub-branches were present. Hon. C. E. Bennett presided. The report of the delegates from the late Irrigation Congress was an interesting part of the proceedings, as it showed the influence the alliance exercised in shaping the policy of the congress in the direction of bringing water to it.

A committee was appointed to interview the County Supervisors in the matter of regulating traffic upon the public highways. The members of the alliance claim that the bicycle has been coming into danger of being run over.

The weather here today has been clear and warm with signs of severe sandstorms in the distance. Last night was much warmer than the three preceding nights and no frost was discernible this morning. It is believed the cold spell is now at an end. There has been no wind here today.

A careful estimate of the damage to the orange crop in the Azusa Valley indicates at least not more than 2 per cent. of the entire crop. The oranges of this valley possess thicker skins than those of other districts and this fact has proven their salvation during the late freeze.

THE LONE STAR.

Two Well-known Texans Adopt It as Their Emblem and Trade Mark.

The brilliant success achieved by Wesley Clark and E. P. Bryan in their special partnership for the handling of the Clark & Bryan tract has resulted, as was natural, in their forming a still closer alliance for the transaction of general business as a firm. Mr. Bryan has withdrawn from the firm of Bryan & Kelsey and removed his belongings to the elegant quarters in the Stimson Block heretofore occupied by Mr. Clark, the latter having given up the other occupants of the office, to whom he had been furnishing "deskroom." Painters and decorators are fitting the place up in fine style. Five new signs in red and gold, the distinctive feature of which is the "lone star" emblem and trademark of the two Texans, are being placed on the glass of the windows, and they are about as handsome and attractive as anything in this line anywhere. The new firm will start in the new quarters with a prestige that insures great results.

Both members of it are "rustlers" in the best sense of that overworked term, and, in addition, are men of sound and proved judgment and the highest character.

Their knowledge of real estate values in this country and vicinity is unequalled and unquestioned, and any person requiring counsel or advice in real estate matters would do a long way before he would find a better firm to apply to.

THE CITRUS EXHIBITS.

Three Carloads of Southern California Productions Unloaded at the Fair Grounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.) Information from Chicago regarding the great fire in the exposition grounds has been received here by the Executive Committee of the Midwinter Fair to the effect that no goods intended for the fair were injured by the fire and that very few were even damaged by water. The Russian exhibits, concerning which there was some anxiety, escaped untouched, and none of the dampness incurred will interfere with speedy shipment of exhibits which have not as yet been damaged.

The date for opening the Northern California Citrus Fair is January 15, and the Citrus Fair of Southern California opens on February 20. In the Southern California building a tower

A HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

There is one very encouraging feature which promises well for the future growth and development of this State, to be found in the large increase of travel in this direction, not tourist travel, but that class of people who are bringing money with them for investment. The inducements for such investment in the older States are not considered as good as those to be found in California. The panic through which the country has passed and the effects of which it still feels, has shaken the foundations of all departments of business in the various sections of the country and capital has become timid about making investments in speculative fields, and so it is coming in this direction to invest in land, which is considered a safe investment, and the fruit industry will attract a large number of these newcomers. Then our Midwinter Fair, if it is the success which it promises to be, will enlist the interest of large numbers who will be charmed with the winter climate and varied productions. Our markets are continually broadening, and the success which attended the attempt to ship California fruits to Europe last year will lead to a renewal of the same and doubtless open up for us a wide market for our products in the Old World.

A vast amount of imported fruit is also consumed in this country and which is not of good quality as that grown in this State. If our fruit-growers will adhere strictly to the rule of only placing their best fruits upon Eastern markets we can soon crowd out the imported article and create a large demand for ours. This done, a bright future awaits the fruit industry in this State, and there will be no danger of overloading the market. We shall see a new impetus to growth after the Midwinter Fair is over if all goes well, and Southern California will attract her proportion of the newcomers if we proclaim the advantages of this section through the excellence of our exhibits. The World's Fair made known the advantages of life here to thousands who knew but little of the State before, and the Midwinter Fair will finish the lesson which the world began to learn there. Let us do our best and confidently await results.

THE DUTY OF ECONOMY.

There is no question but that enough is wasted by the ordinary, well-to-do American family to comfortably support the needs of, at least, one or two individuals daily. Clean, wholesome scraps of food are carelessly consigned to the garbage barrel, together with the remains of well-cooked dishes where there is not enough left for another meal. How many families there are at present who would be thankful if they could receive what is thus thoughtlessly wasted. At a time when so many are hungry and out of employment and unable to provide themselves and families with the necessities of life, wastefulness is a crime against the more unfortunate members of community who are lacking proper food and clothing and fuel.

But, says one, "I have no time to give personally to the search for cases of destitution, nor to distribute the food that is left over from my table; what would you have me do?" There is but one course to be pursued by those who are guilty of wastefulness and extravagance, and that is the practice of greater economy, and the refusal to allow anything whatever to be thrown away that can in any way be utilized in the preparation of a good, wholesome meal. What though you do have warmed over dishes on your table, and everything is not as fresh as usual from the market and the butcher, eat it with a thankful heart, and the money that you would have spent for fresh supplies, if these had been thrown away after your common practice, you can give, at least in part, without feeling it, through our Associated Charities, to help supply the needs of those who are without the comforts and the necessities of life. Large sums might be raised in this way and yet those given not be any the poorer for the benevolence practiced.

STATEHOOD FOR THE TERRITORIES.

It looks as if Arizona would soon be admitted as a State, while New Mexico will probably have to wait for a little time yet. Both of these Territories have been making a hard fight for statehood for a number of years. It is hard for American citizens who have been brought up in other sections of the country to become accustomed to the idea of being ruled from Washington, and having no vote in national affairs, either personal or through their delegates at the capital. These Territories, which contain a population of energetic and intelligent men who have come from all States in the Union, will doubtless maintain the dignity of Statehood with honor whenever it is granted to them. Although the opening of the transcontinental railroad through Arizona to the East has diverted a considerable amount of trade and travel in that direction, Los Angeles still looks upon the Territory as a portion of its "back country," while the Arizonians, or at least a great majority of them, look upon this city as a headquarters whenever they or their families want to take a little trip and cool off, or whenever they want to make purchases of articles which cannot be obtained in the Territory. It is to be hoped that the tie between the two sections will become closer from year to year, as their interests in many questions, especially in that relating to irrigation, are identical, and the time will soon come when it will be necessary for all the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain States to stand closely together on questions where our common interests are involved.

THE YUZA AND PHOENIX RAILROAD.

A few days ago San Diego was all torn up by a dispatch from Mr. Carson, who, as before hinted in these columns, is a great statesman of the breeding breed. This able sky-scraper telegraphed from Mexico that he had secured a concession from the Mexican government which would enable him to build the San Diego and Phoenix Railroad p. d. q. if not sooner. The San Diegans saw visions of large sums of money expended for construction purposes and real estate took a perceptible jump. It appears now that no cash subsidy is given by Mexico for the construction of the road, but a right-of-way and a strip of land twenty miles in width for colonization purposes, upon which, however, one thousand families must be settled within eight years. It is stated that a loan has been negotiated with a New York trust company on the strength of this concession. The Times hopes that such is the case, as the more railroads we have in this section the better. As to whether such a railroad would pay for some years, it is a doubtful question. To look at the map it certainly appears as if the most natural route from the East to the Pacific Ocean would be a direct line from Yuma to San Diego rather than by the somewhat longer route via San Bernardino and Los Angeles. On paper that is all very well, but in reality it is somewhat of a different thing. A railroad to earn expenses—not to speak of paying a dividend—must have freight to carry. The line through San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties carries every year a very large amount of freight, including some 500 carloads of oranges. In the country between San Diego and Yuma on the route proposed for this road there is at present little or no freight for road to haul. Granting that the country is rich and that a large productive business can be developed within a moderate time, that does not provide freight for the next few years, which is the most crucial period with a railroad. No subsidy, however liberal, can compensate for lack of business on the line of a road. Luck of consideration of this fact is one of the reasons why so many roads are today in the hands of receivers. Still if Mr. Carson can raise the amount to build that road we shall congratulate him and the people of San Diego, even though it does bring that city a little nearer to the East than Los Angeles is. The position of Los Angeles as the commercial center of the southern counties of California is now so firmly established that we have no more reason to be jealous of San Diego than we are of Santa Barbara, or Ventura, or Santa Monica or Redondo, or than San Francisco is of Humboldt and Santa Cruz.

The news which comes from almost every part of the world during the opening days of the new year is of a warlike and bloodthirsty character. From Italy we learn that Sicily has been declared in a state of siege, while there are serious disturbances in many other parts of the country. In France and Spain they are arresting Anarchists on all sides, while the Anarchists threaten still greater outrages. In Brazil the two opposing forces are trying their best to annihilate each other, while disease decimates both parties alike. The Nicaraguan forces are marching against Honduras and we are informed that the city of Los Angeles has been captured by the Nicaraguan commander. In Russia the Catholic population is much stirred up over the recent brutal outrages perpetrated by Cossack troops. On the west coast of Africa there has been a tussle between British and French troops which may lead to international complications. Meantime, throughout the world there is discontent and complaining and the threat of outbreak. It is true that we are having rather hard times in the United States just now, but when we glance over the news of the world from day to day we should certainly be thankful that things are no worse than they were with us.

It is encouraging to learn from a Canadian dispatch that the British government has agreed with Russia for the renewal of the modus vivendi in the matter of the Bering Sea fisheries until further notice. Now that this has been accomplished, it may not be long before the status quo is re-established, after which there will follow a restoration of the entente cordiale, and then we will be happy—at least, until the last-mentioned diplomatic contrivance happens to become ruptured by a casus belli with a club in its hand.

A change has apparently come o'er the spirit of the dream of the House Committee on Naval Affairs. The committee has unanimously decided to re-purchase the resolution calling for all instructions from the Navy Department to commanders of vessels at Honolulu and going as far back as the date of President Harrison's inauguration into office. The inquiry ought to throw some light on the vexed question of the responsibility for Capt. Wiltsie's act.

A superseverine, anti-Anarchist correspondent—all the same like the one who flew into a violent passion because The Times criticised the spelling "Xmas," and jumped onto the genre who write it "Calif."—is all brouse up over our latest reference to King Lo Bengula. He (the correspondent, not the "colored king") insists that we attacked the Matabele in the rear. . . . Some people are so hard to suit.

If "Calif." is good, why not make it "Caliph" and be done with it? Or what is the matter with emir, ahskond and sandjak sherif? Oh, pasha!

AFTER LAST FALL.

(Tune: "After the Ball"—For Republicans only.)

A little boy climbed an old man's knee; Regged for the reason, "Do papa, please? Why are you gloomy, like a donkey?"

"I had a job last year, you know; What I have none now, child, you shall soon know."

"Four and six, such a man and team shall be given at least three days work in each week."

"Fifth, the Street Superintendent and City Engineer are invited to act with the commission in this matter.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Another Call for Color.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9, 1894.—(To the Editor of The Times.) A striking illustration of the old saying, "What is everybody's business is nobody's business," is to be seen in the heating of the High-school building.

Daily on school days one can hear the students in the cold end endure all day in the rooms, where the small gas stoves influence the temperature of the air but a few feet around them, while the smell of the escaping gases permeates the whole room.

According to Mr. Preston's statement, the school building is heated in the evening, there are in each schoolroom ventilators which can be used as flues for coal stoves by continuing the flues from the attic through the roof, thereby making perfect chimneys. Why cannot the noxious gas stoves be replaced by coal stoves?" the small cost to be considered, the health of our girls and boys is weighed in the balance?

Will you not throw the search light of your intelligence, Mr. Editor, on this apathy, and find its cause?

(COURT RECORD)

HELD FOR FORGERY.Riman Must Answer for His Crime.*No Defense Was Offered by the Smooth Swindler.*He Makes Efforts to Compromise His Wrong-doing.*He Said His Son Authorized the Use of His Signature—Divorce Granted—Probate Business—Court Notes.*Ernest A. Riman, a Broadway real estate agent and notary public was yesterday afternoon held to answer to the crime of forgery by Justice Bartholomew, under bonds in the sum of $1000.*From the testimony taken at the preliminary examination held in the Township Court it appears that on June 19 last Albert O'Neill of this city, posted an advertisement posted outside Riman's office to the effect that he desired to exchange some property in Kansas, for property in this city. O'Neill went in to inquire about the matter and as a result of his interview with Riman agreed to exchange a lot on San Pedro street valued at $3500 which he owned, for 160 acres of land in Chautauqua county, Kan., which Riman alleged was owned by his son, Edward, subject to a mortgage for $750 and interest due to P. H. Albright & Co. In accordance with agreement O'Neill executed a deed by which he conveyed his property to Edward Riman and registered the deed in the Department of Deeds, having been signed by Edward Riman, and to convey the Kansas property to him. The latter deed was taken home by Riman, presumably to be signed by his son, but, subsequently transpired, it was really signed by his son, Edward Riman's representations O'Neill shortly afterward went East to take possession of his newly-acquired property, but found upon his arrival in Kansas that his assignee had no title to the property whatever. Realizing that he had been swindled, he wired his son to come his way back to this city and taxed Riman with his perfidy, but that wily individual assured his dupes that he could not render him any assistance in the premises as his son, Edward, was away and he knew nothing of him whatever. Realizing that he was unable to get an satisfactory explanation out of the father, O'Neill placed the matter in the hands of Detective Inley, who found the son working for D. F. Donegan, the contractor, under the assumed name of Edward Ryan. An effort was made by the Riman to compromise the matter, but the deeds were executed by Wells, Riman's son-in-law, to whom the property had been conveyed meantime in order to place the title in the hands of a third party, to Riman the younger and by him to O'Neill, the wily swindler, his property. The elder Riman attempted to evade the consequences of his crime by partially disguising himself and was tramping down to San Diego, but was arrested there and brought back.*The only defense offered so far is that Riman signed the deed in question in good faith and with the full knowledge of his son in the latter's bedroom and that young Riman, who is scarcely 18 years of age, admits that he told his father he could use his signature.*DIVORCE GRANTED.*Eugenia A. Hollingsworth was granted a decree by Judge Clark yesterday afternoon, divorcing her from John B. Hollingsworth, who offered no opposition to the suit, upon the ground of cruelty.*Judge Van Dyke heard and granted the application of Annie E. Lau for a decree divorcing her from John C. Lau upon the ground of cruelty yesterday afternoon and allowed her $35 alimony and costs, the defendant submitting to a default.*PROBATE BUSINESS.*In the Probate Court yesterday, Judge Clark transacted the following business: Estates of W. F. Fenerstein, deceased; J. S. Scott, deceased; J. W. Hodges, deceased, and Alice B. Yates, deceased, letters of administration granted; estate of Dr. C. Hollingsworth, deceased; C. J. J. Mansfield et al., an attachment suit, was called for trial by Judge McKinley yesterday morning, defendants' counsel moved for an order precluding the plaintiff from introducing evidence upon the ground that there was an infidelity in the attachment, whereupon the case was dismissed upon motion of the plaintiff.*It was inadvertently stated yesterday, with reference to the Snodgrass divorce case, that while the plaintiff asked for his divorce upon the ground of adultery, the decree was granted upon the grounds of desertion and refusal to perform the duties of wife on the part of the defendant.*The cases against Diego Cruz, Arthur Wilbanks, John McManus and Donald McManus were called yesterday in the United States District Court for today for arraignment and pleading. Falkenberg purchased his saloon about three months ago from a man named Pyron, whom he claims agreed not to go into the saloon business again in Norwalk while he (Falkenberg) was there.*Soon after this Pyron's brother started in the saloon business in the livery stable building, and this angered Falkenberg very much. Directly after this a valuable horse belonging to Pyron was poisoned and died. Suspicion did not rest upon Falkenberg for this act, but since he attempted to fire the barn it is believed that he also administered the poison to the horse out of spite against Pyron.*About 12 o'clock Monday night, a man who was sleeping in a stall in the livery stable, which is owned by A. Spratt, was suddenly awakened by fire. The flames burst out in another portion of the building. He at once raised the cry of fire and awakened the two stable hands.*At the time the alarm was given, the flames had gained much headway, and after a short fight, the fire was put out. A tin filled with straw and rags saturated with coal oil was found, which showed that the blaze had been started by an incendiary.*Detected Inley was notified at 9 o'clock yesterday morning of the matter, and by 4:30 he had safely behind the bars at the County Jail. Board of Trade Meeting—The Tramp Question.

Election of Bank Officials—Current Social Notes—Local Items of General Interest—Personals and Brevities.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held Tuesday afternoon. In the absence of President C. H. Keyes, Vice-President T. S. C. Lowe called the meeting to order. About twenty-five members were present. W. H. Knight acted in his official capacity as secretary.

The principal question discussed was how best to deal with the tramps and the unemployed, scores of whom are making their presence unpleasantly conspicuous in town.

J. A. Buchanan, who has been long and actively connected with the Char- ity Organization Society, stated that the society know of between fifty and seventy-five men who are out of work in Pasadena. He thought plans should be made at once to provide for them. Some are unworthy, but many are willing to work. An enforced state of idleness has a tendency to produce criminals. The speaker agreed that all worthy men should be put to work under direction of the city officials.

Postmaster Kernaghan gave utterance to some pointed remarks on the subject, urging the importance of early action on the part of those in authority. If things are allowed to go on as at present crime will result sooner or later.

Theodore Coleman thought that the way is opening up for a satisfactory solution of the much vexed question. He stated that the law will permit of the carrying out of various municipal improvements at public expense, whereby employment may be afforded all who desire it until the worst of the hard times are over.

W. W. Webster thought that there are a large number of vagrants who are willing to work if they could get it. Many young men, ranging in age from 18 to 22, are roaming the country idle. It is the turning-point in their life, and a little practical encouragement is sifting out the vagrants and if Pasadena waits too long, the tough element will center here. Mr. Webster thought that it would be practical to serve meals at not to exceed a wholesale cost of 5 cents a meal.

Father T. P. Lukens, in a few well-chosen remarks urged the necessity of making some provision to furnish work to the unemployed. Either this must be done, or they must be fed at private expense.

Col. G. Green spoke briefly and to the point. The tramp question is a popular one. Vagrants should be made to work or starve. The adoption of such a course would soon drive away the unworthy. The question is in most serious one. The speaker stated that he had referred to giving some work at his Alhambra residence, but that they had invariably declined the offer and walked away. He approved the idea previously suggested by Mr. Coleman of calling a general meeting to act in the matter.

Mr. Coleman then offered a resolution which was passed together with an amendment suggested by Mr. Wright to the effect that the Board of Trade take steps to solve the unemployed and tramp question and at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the members of the City Council, the ministers of the churches and the citizens generally will be urged to attend, and further, to expedite matters, that a committee of three be appointed to prepare a plan of action and submit it to the church membership roll.

Recent arrivals at Hotel Green in Col. G. Green's home, and to the point. The tramp question is a popular one. Vagrants should be made to work or starve. The speaker stated that he had referred to giving some work at his Alhambra residence, but that they had invariably declined the offer and walked away. The members of the Arcade Sketching Club held a meeting Monday evening at the rooms in the Arcade building, and the meeting was opened with an art club. Prof. F. A. Butler was elected president. Mrs. Bateman, secretary, and Miss White treasurer. The objects of the club are co-operative art work, sketching from models and congenial social intercourse. Meetings will be held each week.

noon at the residence of Miss Wilde on West Colorado street. The affair, which was the prettiest ladies' card party of the season, was given in honor of Mrs. Toppin of the Eight Tables, who was invited for progressive euchre. Partners were selected by the matching of novel trinkets, which were retained as souvenirs, and the prize souvenirs were both appropriate and valuable. Mrs. Vanderveen and Miss Green were succeeded in securing the first prizes. These were a silver oyster fork and a silver-mounted shell hairpin. Misses Libby and Edna Hall were victors in the second class, and won artistic fancy articles, while Miss Greble's share fell a ministerial one. The refreshments for the "feast" were served during the afternoon, and the occasion was one of much merriment and sociability.

Those present were: Mrs. George F. Gilling, Mrs. Libby, Mrs. W. B. Bell, Mrs. H. F. Shorb, Mrs. R. L. Rogers, Mrs. R. T. Vanderveen, Mrs. Updegraff, Mrs. E. Kavner, Mrs. E. B. FAIR LOS ANGELENO VISITORS.

Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming of Los Angeles entertained a party of acquaintances in a delightful manner Tuesday. The programme included a drive to Pasadena in a four-wheeler, and an elaborate lunch at Hotel Green. An evening was given up to an inspection of the new hotel, and the drive home was enjoyed late in the afternoon.

President Derby reported that the long, standing desk, to be used in the exchange room, was made and ready to be set in place; that the contract for nails for the use of the exchange had not yet been made for the reason that specifications as to the amount and kind needed had not yet been received from the various local organizations. An estimate was then made by the representative of the firm of Orange, Placentia and Anaheim organizations of the amount and kind needed and handed in to the president of the exchange. Mr. Derby also reported that he had employed a stenographer and bookkeeper, Mr. G. F. Pease, of Los Angeles, at a salary of $60 per month. Upon motion the board ratified the action of the chairman in the employment of Mr. Heisler.

Upon motion the following order of business was adopted: First, reading of minutes; second, report of the committee third, report of members of the executive board; fourth, report of officers of the board; fifth, report of the Finance Committee; sixth, unfinished business; seventh, general business.

Ben Jonson and Shakespeare.

The lecture by Prof. Gayley at Unity Church last evening was in large part devoted to the writings of Ben Jonson. Comparing the productions of that author with those of Shakespeare, the speaker said it would be seen that there was more of wit than of humor. One would have contempt rather than sympathy for the characters in the various predicaments in which they were apparently placed as a result of their own vice.

The speaker read a number of the most interesting passages which tended to more fully illustrate the remarks he had made regarding the writings of the authors of whom he had spoken.

WENT AWAY HAPPY.

William Drew Was Justified in Taking the Bread.

One of the Few Police Court Scenes Which Were Leavened With Human Kindness—Penituzo's Smooth Plan Frustrated.

Police Court business was reduced to the minimum yesterday, there being but a few unfortunates who required the attention of Justice Seaman brought in for trial and sentence.

John Chew was a strong, healthy-looking man, who had been found on the street begging by Officer McKenna. Chew had not only asked for money, but when this was refused him, he would abuse pedestrians, calling them vile names, and endeavoring to hold them back. He was given thirty days.

Officer Rohn, while in a Main-street passageway, saw a man sitting on a bench, who had come in with a bolt of cloth, which he endeavored to sell to the broker. The cloth proved to have been stolen from a tailor-shop, and the man, whose name was W. P. Gaelor, was arrested. He entered a plea of guilty, and was ordered to appear today for sentence.

Willie Drew, the boy who stole three loaves of bread, the other morning, when almost starved, occupied a seat in the dock to await sentence. His story had been so straightforward and without so pitiful that the court and those who heard it were interested in his behavior. The boy, John C. Esco, appeared in behalf of the boy without charge, and appealed to the sympathy of the court in asking his release, when Justice Seaman allowed the defendant to go. Ballif Appel was not to be outdone, and he ordered the jailer to have a boy put up and given to Esco, and the lad was given away to the worse for his experience in the City Prison.

John Murphy, James Ottis and J. C. Cunningham got thirty days apiece upon being convicted of vagrancy.

Penituzo, the bootblack, who was found guilty of disturbing the peace, tried a very hard fight yesterday in order to cheat his attorney, but Justice Seaman was too sharp for him. When the man was convicted, H. J. Crawford, Esq., appeared for him, and the court set yesterday at time for passing sentence. Ballif Appel had been paid in the sum of $10, and such portion of the fine was evidently to get as remained after the fine had been paid. As soon as the order for continuance of time for sentence had been made, and the attorneys had gone, Penituzo reappeared and asked the court to sentence him at once, in view of the evident intention of drawing down an amendment of the fine himself and leave Crawford without pay for his services. The court saw through the little game, and imposed a fine of the full amount of $10, much to the Italian's disappointment.

We are offering the purchasing public an opportunity to supply their wants at less than cost of manufacture. We do this because we take stock Feb. 1, and we have too much. We will lose money to do it. The prices now ruling in every department are so low that if the variety or style suits you can't help but purchase. We are doing everything within the power or ingenuity of legitimate merchandising to reduce stock.
